With millions of dollars in inventory, it is absolutely essential to invest in a security camera system to prevent car theft and monitor operations of your car dealership.

It is absolutely essential to invest in a security system for your car dealership

Video Surveillance for Car Dealerships and Garages

Car dealerships are the perfect environment for video surveillance, both because of the value of the inventory and its susceptibility to theft. Automobiles, depending on make, model, year and features, can vary in price from a few thousand to a few hundred thousand dollars. Dealerships also leave a large majority of their inventory out in parking lots – leaving million dollar inventories exposed to theft and harmful weather for hours at a time.

Benefits of Dealership and Garage Surveillance

Prevent Theft – Like other retail stores, the dollar is the bottom line for auto dealerships and garages. Protecting their inventory and potential profit is an essential aspect of sales, and with expensive inventory security becomes that much more important. Video surveillance cameras placed around lots can help prevent thieves from taking cars, as well as identify any thieves who do take cars.

Track Customers and Visitors

The ability to track customer habits, especially correlating data between which cars customers look at and which cars they decide to purchase, can be valuable information for marketing, inventory, and dealership sales staff. Video security cameras, especially those equipped with intelligent video analytics technology, can help you count and track customers as they move around your business.

Protect Buildings, Employees, and Customers

Surveillance cameras can help by keeping your security staff posted about any security issues that arise throughout the day. Modern security cameras allow staff to be more flexible in their duties with features like video alerts and mobile viewing. Instead of sitting in front of a monitor all day, security guards can actively patrol your grounds and receive alerts from cameras.

A surveillance system at a car dealership can be a great way to cut down on abuse or vandalism from both staff and customers, and it can also be a great deterrent and aid in the prevention and prosecution of thefts. It can also be a great management information tool as it allows dealership owners to monitor the shop remotely across the internet in live time and even remotely play back previously recorded events.
